

ABSTRACT

A method is provided for the production of glass with reduced volatilization of components.

Such method allows the reduction of emitted metals and other volatiles in the production of glass.

5 The method encompasses the use of a calcium magnesium silicate in the production glass composition.